

I still remember the first time I went inside an almost empty class with my classmates because we were going to have a different teacher and program. The first year was not the most exciting but we went to a camp in Asturias which I enjoyed a lot. We lived in small cabins of five or six people each one and we played games with other groups. Moreover, we did zip line and used an electric scooter. It was really funny, even when we went to a beautiful cape and started raining. Later, the same year, we participated in a photography contest and I managed to win! But I think that I have not used my prize yet.

Next year we started talking with german people and a canadian student came to Spain. Furthermore, we did another contest - a horror story contest, which I enjoyed a lot. We also did many other activities like eating, gymkhanas... And also a play, but it was not as funny as the other things we did.

When i was fourteen we went to Grimma, Germany. I think that it was the best thing that has ever happened to me and the bilingual program. We slept one night in Berlin and visited some touristic places like the Holocuast monument or the Brandenburg door. We also visited Leipzig and its amazing trail station; Grimma, where most part of us stayed with our German penpals that later became our new friends... Yes, it was an amazing trip, not because of the things we saw and the vocabulary we learnt, but because of the people we met, who were all really nice. I remember that it was the first time that I cried saying goodbye to someone that I did not know at all. Some time after they came to Spain and we visited Salamanca, Segovia, Zamora... It was really sad when we realized that we were not going to see each other again after their leaving but we will always remember them.

Even though this last year has been pretty weird we have done some amazing things. Firstly, we went to Malta an entire week. We stayed in the homes of people from there and, in my case, they were really sweet and took a lot of care about me and my friend. We attended the Notte Bianca, where everything - museums, exhibitions... is free, and we interact with more german people in our english class. The best part of these classes was the diversity of accents of the teachers, since there were people from America, Malta, United Kingdom... in addition, we had to talk with people from there in order to complete activities but it was not very difficult.

Apart from all of the activities we also had native speakers like Laurent or Spencer, who have been helping us to improve our accent, grammar and expressions. My class was also very lucky since we have not been a lot of people, so we have done way more activities than other years.

These four years are like nothing, they were too fast and I am going to miss the bilingual program, together with my classmates that are going to go to other highschools. If I could go back to first year I would choose, without any doubt the bilingual program. Do I recommend it? Absolutely yes, you will meet a lot of different people and learn so many things. The bilingual program is something that you have to do.
